Brief Description of Undergraduate Courses Taught: (Course Title – Code: Description)

Principles of Business Law ADM 205: This course begins by describing the evolution of law, the purpose of law, its importance to a citizen and especially to a business person. The course scans through the process; starting from when a wrong is committed against an individual to its resolution and the appeal process. In addition, an exercise in making a law will make students understand the intricacies and difficulties in such a workout including the intention, implementation and interpretation of laws. The course is taught within the legal environment of business.

Principles of Insurance INSU 209: The objective of the course is to introduce student to the basic concept and terminology in insurance. It deals with the nature of business insurance, insurance practices, insurance markets, insurance regulations, types of insurance and the roles of insurance in the economy.
