Imam Abdul Rahman Bin Faisal University (IAU), represented by the Deanship of Community Service and Sustainable Development's "Flow" volunteer team, concluded the implementation of the Qout campaign (حملة قوت) in its seventh year, as part of its Ramadan initiatives to collect in-kind donations and prepare food baskets to extend a helping hand to those who are needy during the blessed month of Ramadan. 1,677 Ramadan food baskets containing 12 items of basic foodstuffs, benefiting 1,500 families from the most needy groups in the eastern region, as the number of volunteers in the campaign reached more than 900 volunteers, and the total number of volunteer hours registered in the national platform for volunteer work affiliated with the Ministry of Resources Human and social development exceeded 3000 hours.

The Dean of the Deanship of Community Service and Sustainable Development, Prof. Fatima Al-Mulhim, explained that this campaign comes out of the community responsibility adopted by the university in carrying out its role towards society, as the campaign targeted different segments of society, by providing Ramadan food baskets to the needy families, and the preparation and implementation of the campaign was carried out by the Volunteer Flow Team of the Deanship of Community Service and Sustainable Development from among the university's employees who took upon themselves the fulfillment of the university's mission in serving religion, the nation and society at large.

Al-Mulhim said that the mechanism for distributing the baskets relied on handing them over to the university's partners from the charitable societies to distribute them to those who are eligible through them to the needy families, as an extension of their active role and what is dictated by the social responsibility that requires solidarity to contribute to achieving their tasks in community service.

Al-Mulhim added that the campaign received great interaction among members of the community to participate in its implementation in the best way and the desire of everyone to earn a reward, especially in this holy month of Ramadan.
